Tired of Pulling Kids Out of Floods

Originally written: May 5, 2024 · Published here: May 12, 2026

I'm tired of pulling kids and families out of floods …

… as I did back in 2019 … I'll offer again to build an AI system for free and give it to my community (see attached letters of support from Rep. Dan Huberty and Councilman Dave Martin). It's the least I can do for all God has given me.

As you know, AI has advanced considerably since 2019 when I told leaders of AI's impending powers and why they needed to educate themselves (though I didn't know how quickly the advancements would come). Many of these powers have since come … and with advancements in agentive reasoning and agents … what we've seen so far is comparatively nothing.

I'm happy to help my community. The only thing I can do is keep offering.

BTW—the first image is from Hurricane Harvey. The next day I was pulling my family out in my canoe.

All is well. All will be well. God has a plan. This I believe in by faith. Surrender. Faith. Trust. Do as much good as you can do with the good you've been given.
