Why not faster development?

October 7, 2021

“$20k a month … that’s all the resources God has given me at this point”

---“Nature smiles. ”

- Jed Anderson

Why can’t I build this machine to protect humanity and nature faster?

Money

I personally hate money. I find it highly annoying. It buys a bunch of problems I don’t want. Part of the challenge of building this company is to make it a success without me becoming a financial success.

$20k a month

I can only spend max $20k cash a month on development at this point. That’s all I’ve got. And in fact more than I’ve got. Here’s a fun new fact though … you can do amazing things right now without much money. The only true limit is becoming the limits of imagination. Money is decreasingly becoming a barrier. It’s an incredible new world we are living into!

---“As always, there’s good news and there’s bad news. The bad news is, we seem incapable of solving our more pressing or persistent problems. The good news is, we’re getting closer to building a machine that might do it for us.”—Jim Vibert

Why is EnviroAI building technology to protect humanity and the environment?

Interspersed in the environmental automation products below are the images why.

ENVIROVERSE

… building the environmental metaverse for environmental interaction and collaboration.

—"The more we automate mundane environmental compliance and protection tasks, the more we can free-up talented human minds and financial resources to solve the more intractable problems."
